About the Program

Welcome to the 6th Annual 1199SEIU RNLMI Nursing Symposium. This year, the symposium will build upon ideas from the 5th Annual Symposium, where hospital executives and leaders from the New York State (NYS) Department of Health discussed the changes in how we will deliver healthcare in the future and introduced us to Delivery System Reform Incentive Payment (DSRIP).

This year, we will take the transformation in healthcare delivery a step farther and begin to identify new opportunities and careers for nurses in the future — and the future is now!

DSRIP is providing funding that will drive radical changes in how and where care is delivered to patients. Under DSRIP, the center of healthcare will shift from the inpatient hospital setting to ambulatory and community based care. To help prepare nurses for this paradigm shift, the symposium will begin to explore ideas and opportunities for nurses and help create the blueprint for the future of nursing. Our distinguished speakers and panelists are leaders and catalysts of change. They will discuss the changes that have already taken place and their perspective on future roles for nurses.

As we join you on this journey, 1199SEIU RNLMI is committed to working with labor and management to position nurses who are prepared for new roles and are part of the solution.
